Chief, FBIB

Technical Information

1. This office is often inconvenienced by the length of time required to obtain answers to requests for technical information such as transmitter frequencies and broadcast schedules. Since even very simple questions are answered after a delay of several days, it appears that the problem is not one of availability of the information but of obtaining it from the British Broadcasting Corporation.

2. Request that you attempt to work out with BBC officials a procedure enabling inquiries not involving research to be answered immediately.
